The film opens with a scene of a young woman named Lajjo (played by Swara Bhaskar) being forced to marry a much older man. Lajjo is terrified of her new husband, and she soon learns that he is a violent alcoholic. One night, after a particularly brutal beating, Lajjo runs away from home.

Lajjo ends up in a shelter for women who have been victims of domestic violence. There, she meets another young woman named Babli (played by Divya Dutta). Babli is a single mother who has been disowned by her family. The two women bond over their shared experiences, and they soon become friends.

Lajjo and Babli decide to leave the shelter and start a new life together. They find work as maids, and they slowly begin to rebuild their lives. However, their pasts continue to haunt them. Lajjo is still afraid of her husband, and Babli is constantly worried about her son.

One day, Lajjo's husband finds her and tries to force her to come back home. Lajjo refuses, and she is badly beaten. Babli comes to her aid, and the two women manage to escape.

Lajjo and Babli are determined to make a better life for themselves. They start a small business, and they eventually open their own beauty salon. The salon is a success, and the women are finally able to achieve their dreams.

Broken Churiyaan is a powerful and inspiring film about the strength and resilience of women. The film is a must-see for anyone who is interested in social justice or women's rights.
