Our democracy is in crisis. The influence of big money in politics is eroding our faith in government, and gerrymandering is making it harder for citizens to have their voices heard. We need to amend our Constitution to rescue democracy for all citizens.

The Influence of Big Money in Politics

Big money has a corrupting influence on our political system. Corporations and wealthy individuals can donate unlimited amounts of money to candidates and political parties, and they use this money to buy influence and access. This gives them an unfair advantage over ordinary citizens, who do not have the same financial resources.

The influence of big money in politics is a threat to our democracy. It undermines the principle of one person, one vote, and it makes it harder for citizens to hold their elected officials accountable.

Gerrymandering

Gerrymandering is the practice of drawing electoral districts in a way that gives one political party an unfair advantage over the other. This can be done by packing members of one party into a few districts, or by spreading them out over many districts so that they are outnumbered by members of the other party.

Gerrymandering is a threat to our democracy. It makes it harder for citizens to elect the candidates of their choice, and it can lead to the suppression of minority votes.

Constitutional Amendments to Rescue Democracy

We need to amend our Constitution to rescue democracy for all citizens. We need to overturn the Citizens United decision, which allows corporations and wealthy individuals to donate unlimited amounts of money to candidates and political parties. We need to implement campaign finance reform to level the playing field between ordinary citizens and big money interests. And we need to end gerrymandering so that all citizens have an equal voice in our government.

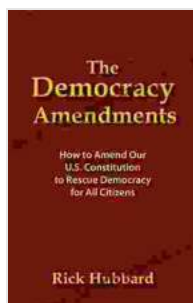

The following are some specific constitutional amendments that we could adopt to rescue democracy for all citizens:

- Overtake Citizens United: A constitutional amendment could overturn the Citizens United decision and allow Congress and the states to regulate campaign finance.

- Implement campaign finance reform: A constitutional amendment could implement campaign finance reform, such as limiting the amount of money that individuals and corporations can donate to candidates and political parties.
- End gerrymandering: A constitutional amendment could end gerrymandering by creating an independent commission to draw electoral districts.

These are just a few of the constitutional amendments that we could adopt to rescue democracy for all citizens. By working together, we can create a more just and equitable democracy that works for everyone.
