About David Leslie

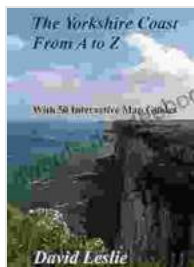

David Leslie is a cartographer, author, and adventurer who has spent his life exploring the world. He has written over 50 interactive map guides, which are the perfect way to plan your next adventure.

Leslie's passion for cartography began at a young age. He loved to draw maps of his neighborhood and imagine all the places he would go. When he was in college, he studied geography and cartography. After graduating, he worked as a cartographer for the National Geographic Society.

In 1986, Leslie founded his own company, David Leslie Maps. He has since published over 50 interactive map guides, which have sold over 2 million copies worldwide. Leslie's maps are used by hikers, bikers, campers, and travelers of all kinds.

Leslie is also a passionate advocate for outdoor recreation. He is a member of the board of directors of the American Hiking Society and the National Parks Conservation Association. He has also worked with the National Park Service to create maps for several national parks.

Leslie's work has been praised by critics and adventurers alike. He has been called "the world's greatest cartographer" by the New York Times. Outside magazine said that his maps are "the best way to plan your next adventure."
